LOST LIGHT.

I cannot make her smile again,
That sunshine on her face
That used to make this worn earth seem
At times so gay a place.
The same dear eyes look out at me.
The features are the same.
But, oh, the smile is out of them,
And I must be to blame.

Sometimes I see it still. I went
With her the other day
To meet a long missed friend, and while
We still were on the way
Her confidence in waiting love
Brought back to me to see
The old time lovelight to her eyes
That will not shine for me.

They tell me money waits for me.
They say I might have fame.
I like those gewgaws quite as well
As others like the same.
But I care not for what I have
Nor lust for what I lack
One tithe as much as my heart longs
To call that lost light back.

Come back, dear banished smile, come back,
And into exile drive
All thoughts and aims and jealous hopes
That in thy stead would thrive.
Who wants the earth without its sun?
And what has life for me,
That's worth a thought if as its price
It leaves me robbed of thee?
—Edward S. Martin in Scribner's.

THE RED HOUSE.

It was really a red house, but it acted upon the squire's irascible temperament like the red rag of the proverb, and he never caught sight of it without flushing angrily and bursting forth into a volley of furious epithets against its owner.

If the builder had only chosen a site at the north, where the red house would have been hidden behind the plantation of oaks and beeches, Squire Turnbull would have good naturedly sold him a piece of land for a mere song. But that he should have planted his ugly, staring, modern villa exactly in front of the squire's windows, interrupting his favorite view of the south downs and the sea, was an unbearable piece of impertinence. But this land at the south did not belong to the squire, and his rage was ineffectual.

Now, Mabel Turnbull, the squire's only daughter, a lovely girl of 19, was interested in the young doctor, who was both owner and inhabitant of the red house. This was not only because he was handsome and had quickly won a reputation for cleverness in the neighborhood, but because she had once come upon him in a country lane, and, unseen herself, she had watched him bind up the knee of a little village girl who had fallen and cut herself. He took the greatest pains over the simple dressing, using his own handkerchief as a bandage, and when he further comforted his little patient with a bright silver sixpence and a kiss Mabel Turnbull came to the conclusion that Dr. Gerard Massey was a man worth knowing. But she could not bring her father to her way of thinking. The red house was an intolerable obstruction to Squire Turnbull's cherished view of the south downs and the sea. Dr. Massey owned the red house and lived in it; therefore Dr. Massey was not to be tolerated.

It was not often that the two men encountered each other, and after their first meeting they passed without notice. On that first occasion Dr. Massey had lifted his hat, but the squire had deliberately turned his head aside, and the hint had been taken.

About a month after the doctor had taken up his abode in the red house the squire strolled down to the south gate of his grounds and went out into the road to see his daughter mount her bicycle, and after she had started he strolled along a little way that he might get a better view of her as she swept round a bend of the road. The old man's face glowed with pride and love when she waved her hand to him and vanished, and swinging swiftly round he planted his foot on a round stone which rolled on the hard road and threw him violently to the ground.

"I fear you have hurt yourself. May I help you?" said a voice beside him.

The squire looked up angrily and saw that he had fallen near to the gate of the red house just as Dr. Massey was coming out.

"Thank you, sir! I need no assistance," he said haughtily.

As he spoke he scrambled hastily to his feet and gave a sudden cry of pain as he put his wrenched foot to the ground.

"You have hurt yourself more than you think," persisted Dr. Massey. "Here is my carriage. Let me drive you home."

The squire was white to the lips with pain, but his pride rebelled against accepting a favor from the owner of the red house.

"Thank you!" he repeated decidedly. "I can manage with my stick."

"As you will," replied the other. "Good morning!"

He sprang into his carriage and drove away, while the squire began his slow and painful walk home. Reaching his library, he sank into his easy chair, with great beads of sweat rolling down his pale cheeks.

Having sent a servant for his own doctor, he proceeded to bathe and bandage his foot, and so busily was he engaged in his amateur doctoring that he did not hear the sound of wheels on the gravel without nor the commotion of many feet in the hall.

A sharp knock sounded on the door.

"Come in!" cried the squire, looking up.

Dr. Gerard Massey entered, looking grave.

Mr. Turnbull's face flushed dusky red with anger.

"How dare you come to see me uninvited?" he cried, flaring up passionately.

"Mr. Turnbull," replied Dr. Massey quietly, "I don't know why you hate me so, but you must try to forget it—for your daughter's sake. She has met with a severe accident. Luckily I came upon her as she fell from her machine, and I have brought her home."

"Brought her home?" repeated the squire slowly. "Is she dead, then?"

"No, not dead, and I trust she will not die, but she is in a very critical state and will need great care. Her head has been severely injured, and she is now unconscious."

The old man drew a long breath.

"I ought to apologize. I fear I have been rude, and I must thank you for what you have done," he said. Then he added stiffly, "I have sent for my own medical man, Dr. Travers, to attend to this confounded foot of mine, and I expect him every moment."

"Travers has been called suddenly to town and has left his patients in my care," replied Dr. Massey. "I am sorry, but I fear you must put up with me—for your daughter's sake. I won't trouble you longer than I can help. In the meantime let me put you comfortable."

Without waiting for permission, the young doctor went down on his knees, and in a few minutes his skillful hands had brought comparative ease to the injured foot.

"Now I must go back to Miss Turnbull," he said

"Thank you. You are very kind," said the squire to the owner of the red house.

A year later Squire Turnbull stood looking gloomily out of his library window. His eyes were fixed on the red house, and he was using bad language under his breath.

Suddenly a smile overspread his face as a pair of bicycles came skimming noiselessly up the carriage drive, bearing his daughter Mabel and Dr. Gerard Massey to the front door. The sound of their laughter was heard in the hall; then there was a knock at the library door, and the young doctor came in alone. His handsome face was flushed, and he crossed the floor and took up his position beside the old man at the window.

"Squire," he cried impetuously, "you know my secret quite well. I needn't tell you how dearly I love your daughter Mabel. Will you let me tell her so?"

"Do you mean that you haven't told her already, sir?" returned the squire gruffly, hiding his twinkling eyes with frowning brows.

"No, I have not told her, but I—I think she knows."

"I dare say. Now, young man, tell me, do you claim her from me as your right because you saved her life?"

"I have no claim but the claim of a true love, and only Mabel's true love for me can respond to it."

"And what if I refuse my permission?"

"I shall wait a year, until Mabel is 21, and then I shall ask her without it," replied the young doctor firmly.

"And you think she would say 'Yes?'"

"Yes, I think she would."

"And so do I, Gerard, my boy, so do I!" cried the old squire heartily. "I don't see that there is any good in my holding out and keeping you both waiting a year for your happiness. But I must make a condition, you know. It's a father's right."

"What is it?" asked Gerard eagerly.

"You must come and live here. I won't get in your way. I only want a couple of rooms. And you must let me pull down that—that—that"—

"Pull down the red house!" cried the young doctor in amazement, seeing that the squire was pointing with a trembling finger toward his home. "Mabel and I will live with you gladly, if she will have me, but why not let the red house?"

"Because I hate it!" roared the squire in a voice of thunder, letting his pent up wrath burst upon Gerard's astonished ears in a single shout. "And I want my view of the sea!"

A sudden light flashed into Gerard's mind, and, with a gleeful laugh, he grasped the squire's hand.

"Agreed!" he cried.

And then he went to find Mabel.

This is how it came to pass that Squire Turnbull tore his red rag to shreds and became a man of peace. In other words, he pulled the red house to pieces. He spent the whole of the solitary honeymoon time in the joyful work of demolition, and when Gerard and Mabel Massey drove up to the door on their return they found the old man standing on the steps, bland and beaming and enjoying to the full his extensive view of the south downs and the sea. —Folks at Home.

The Cripple's Advantage.

This city has a wooden legged burglar that is a puzzle to the police. Every night for a week the mysterious individual has visited from one to half a dozen residences, wrecking larders and carrying off articles of clothing.

His tracks clearly show that he has one wooden leg, and as bloodhounds refuse to follow his trail it is supposed that both legs are artificial.

He has been sighted several times, but each time disappears so suddenly that those superstitiously inclined declare that he goes either straight up or straight down.—Kokomo (Ind.) Letter.

A Silent Club.

After the Comrades of Silence and the Academie Silencieuse of Paris comes an association of Vienna husbands who have organized the Club of Silent Ones. The members meet every Monday evening and dine in absolute silence. The least infraction of rules, a single word spoken, costs a bottle of champagne. That which cannot be made intelligible by signs the taciturn diners may write on the menus. Silence is also imposed upon the waiters who serve the dinner, and the steward may not even announce the wines. He merely suggests them by signs.

A Successful Club.

The "question box" of St. Bartholomew's Girls' club in New York is a plan employed by the club to gain general information. All sorts of questions are dropped into the box by such of the 600 members as feel the need of enlightenment on any topic, and once in every fortnight the president and vice president of the club meet with it, and the questions are read and discussed. This is one of the most successful working girls' clubs in New York city.

PARIS ADMIRES HER.

The French Capital Reverses the Newport Verdict on an American Woman.

Mrs. Joseph De la Mar is said to be the most admired American woman in Paris. The Frenchmen simply rave over her. Captain and Mrs. De la Mar have secured a fine hotel at 89 Avenue Niel, in Paris, where they will live during the ensuing year. Mrs. De la Mar is now 22 years old, has a profusion of fair hair, regular features and a perfect complexion.

In direct contrast to the furore her beauty has created in Paris was the coldness with which she was received in Newport. She, with her husband, occupied the King cottage, on Bellevue avenue, during the summer of 1895 and was not received in the best of society. The men said that Mrs. De la Mar was too pretty to be tolerated by the women. Captain De La Mar, who is the owner of Colorado mines, is said to have a prodigious income and has been spoken of as the modern Monte-Christo.

An Airing Indoors.

Elderly people and others who may be temporarily house bound and prevented from enjoying a regular daily stroll outdoors can devise a fair substitute as follows: Bundle up as if for the usual constitutional, select a large, sunny room, preferably at the top of the house, open wide the windows, shut off the heat and move around briskly, going to the window and inhaling the fresh air deeply through the nostrils. We have often called attention to the fact that house air, with its many impurities, overheated condition and general lifelessness, is one of the principal predisposing causes to colds and catarrhal affections. Where a patient or invalid is confined to bed, if the shoulders are kept well covered and the head lightly protected, the windows may be opened and the room flushed with fresh air without any special risk, provided the current does not strike them too directly. The danger from want of proper ventilation is decidedly greater. Deep inhalations of air at the open window, taken gently through the nose, impart an enlivening and tonic influence to the whole nervous system, which can soon be demonstrated by a personal experiment. —Health Magazine.

Long Pointed Bodices.

In the making, and particularly in the wearing, of long pointed bodices, says a fashion writer, there is very often found some difficulty in keeping this point in straight position. It has to be carefully boned to secure this result, and even when this is done the end of the point will roll slightly, and for this reason further precaution is suggested. Take a strong piece of flat elastic, sew one end carefully to the extreme tip of the point—on the underside, of course—and then, slightly stretching the elastic, fasten the other end five or more inches higher. This will cause an upward curve, and when the bodice is worn the defect will right itself and prevent the unsightly rolled up end which is so often perceptible on pointed bodices after being worn a few times.

Jewish Women.

Speaking of the part Jewish women take in the world's progress, the New York Commercial Advertiser says: "The first woman resident in a general hospital in New York was a Jewess, Dr. Josephine Walter. The first woman dentist of Germany was a Jewess, Dr. Fanny Sternfeldt. The fifth training school for nurses established in this country was founded by a Jewess, Mrs. Alma Hendricks of New York. The largest scholarship ever bestowed on an art student was given by a Jewess, Mrs. J. H. Lazarus of New York. May Abrams has become the first woman factory inspector in London, and the latest projected movement in New York to empower trained nurses to become inspectors of tenement districts has been started by a Jewess."

What the Women Did.

Rev. Phebe Hanaford says, "The Biblical text, 'And I will wipe Jerusalem as a man wipeth a dish, wiping it and turning it upside down,' plainly means that in those days men were engaged in menial work." She may or may not be right in this particular instance, but listen to an extract from the quaint description of the Egyptians given by William Waterman in "The Fardle of Facions," published over three centuries ago, "Their women in old tyme had all the trade of occupying, and brokage abrode, and reuelled at the Tauerne, and kepte lustie chiere: and the men satte at home spinnyng and woorkyng of Lace, and suche other thynges as women are wonte." The modern woman is very ancient.

Famous In Cookery.

The Princess of Soubise invented the soup now called after her, while the Princess of Conde gave her name to a particular mode of serving a breast of mutton. The Duchess of Mailly, vying with her, invented a special way of dressing a leg of the same animal. Louise de la Valliere was an adept in the culinary art, and Mme. de Maintenon, learned as she was, would prepare dishes for her royal master.

SONOMA, FEBRUARY 27, 1897.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

PROSPERITY, PEACE AND PLENTY.

THE water question still continues to be the all-absorbing topic of conversation on the streets and in our homes. The proposition to bond this town for a municipal water works system is winning over new converts every day. The more the question is discussed the better it is understood and the more friends it wins.

The construction and operation of its own water system means everything for Sonoma. At the outset it will give employment to every idle mechanic and laboring man in town. These will receive fair wages, a portion of which will find its way into the till of the merchant, hotel man and the trades people in general. The money that goes to pay these wages will not come out of the pockets of our people directly, but will be borrowed from the money-lenders at a low rate of interest, with our own time to pay off the principal, which can be handed down, together with the improvement, to a future generation to pay, if necessary. The money expended will infuse into Sonoma new blood and new life during the construction of the works and will revive business in the old town as it was never revived before.

Once the works are constructed the city will own and control a fine piece of income property and one, too, which will more than pay interest on the investment in the long run. The town will then be no longer at the mercy of the Fire Fiend, and insurance rates will come down.

We will then have water in plenty and, what is more, the force to back it up with. We can then flush the vile, open ditches which meander in their sinuosities through the town, a menace to the health of our people and which in past years have claimed many a victim.

A municipal ownership of water means everything for Sonoma. Our gardens will bloom, our streets will be free from dust, people will no longer shun the town on account of its antedeluvian tendencies. In short it means prosperity, peace and plenty for Sonoma in the years to come.

Silurians and chronic kickers! Stand aside and let Sonoma go ahead!

THE county government bill, which has passed the Senate with but one vote against it, puts Sonoma county in the sixth class, and fixes the compensation of the county officers as follows: Clerk, $5,000, out of which he is to pay a principal deputy and two courtroom deputies; Sheriff, $6,200, out of which he is to pay an under sheriff and two deputies; Recorder, $3,900, out of which he shall pay a chief deputy and two copyists; Auditor, $1,000; Treasurer, $2,600, out of which he shall pay an assistant; Tax-Collector, $2,000; Assessor, $4,200, out of which he shall pay his deputies; District Attorney, $2,400 and assistant $1,500; School Superintendent, $2,000; Supervisors, $6 a day and actual traveling expenses. Other officers, lawful fees. Where deputies or assistants are to be paid the salary is fixed in the bill.

THE new game bill has passed the Senate and will probably be approved by the Assembly and signed by Governor Budd. As the bill now stands the open season for ducks and quail will be lengthened one month. The open season begins on October 1st and ends on March 1st. Mountain quail and grouse may be killed from September 1st to February 15th. Does from July 15th to February 15th. The killing of English skylark, canary, meadow lark, humming bird, thrush, mocking bird and murre is prohibited. Possession of deer during the close season is a misdemeanor.

THANK heaven! The disreputable Legislature is to adjourn on March 13th.

Proposals to Furnish Supplies.

Proposals for furnishing supplies to the California Home, Eldridge, from March 10th to June 30th will be received up to the former date by Wm. P. Edwards, Secretary. No proposals will be entertained unless made upon the blank form furnished by the Secretary upon application. Bidders are required to furnish samples of the articles proposed to be furnished, and such samples as the Home may care to retain will be purchased by it at the rates submitted; others will be returned to the bidders.

Bidders are requested to write plainly in upon the blank the grade of goods bid upon, and when such article submitted and bid upon does not tally with or is not identical with the specified article called for by the blanks, then the bidder must specify fully in writing and indicate plainly by sample what is intended to be added to or substituted for the advertised forms. The following are the general lines of supplies upon which bids are solicited:

Dry goods, shoe shop supplies, laundry supplies, agate ware, groceries, hardware, rubber goods, clothing, painter's supplies, plumber's supplies, cement, beef cattle, coffins, crockery and glassware, drugs and medical supplies, feed, glue, hay, lime, lumber, plaster, plasterer's hair, soaps, ice, meat, shoes, etc.

A NEW MARCH.

A Special Musical Gift to all Readers of Our Paper.

The very latest musical composition to enlist popular approval is "The Broad Street Conservatory March," composed by a young Philadelphian, Roland H. Smith, a pupil of the popular institution to which his work is dedicated. It is highly inspiring, suggestive as it is of the popular marches written by Sousa. It has been played by all the leading theatre orchestras, and concert bands in the Quaker City, and the seaside and mountain resorts. The piano part of this excellent march has just been issued, and through a special arrangement with the author we are enabled to present a copy free to every reader of this paper who will send name and address, enclosing this notice and 6 cents in stamps to cover mailing and postage, to The Broad Street Conservatory of Music, 1331 South Broad street, Philadelphia. The retail price of the March is 40 cents and this is an offer that should be appreciated by our musical friends.

An Old Settler.

When the rheumatism first preempts certain tracts of your anatomy it may be ousted easily, but when it becomes an old settler it is pretty hard to budge. Remember this when you experience the first twinges of this obstinate and agonizing disease, and attack it with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will then "make tracks," and possibly leave you unmolested and in peacable possession of your own comfort in the future. Peril always attend rheumatism, if it become chronic, on account of its tendency to attack the heart. Usually it is complicated with kidney trouble. Certain it is that the kidneys, when aroused by the Bitters, will eliminate impurities which give rise to rheumatism and dropsy. In inclement or wet conditions of the weather, the Bitters, taken in advance, will often avert rheumatic trouble. Use this genial family medicine for dyspepsia, biliousness, headache and constipation.

For a single passage to America a big liner, with 547 passengers and a crew of 287, carries 12,550 pounds of fresh beef, 760 pounds corned beef, 5,320 pounds of mutton, 850 pounds of lamb, 350 pounds of veal, 350 pounds of pork, 2,000 pounds of fresh fish, 600 fowls, 300 chickens, 100 ducks, 50 geese, 80 turkeys, 200 brace grouse, 15 tons of potatoes, 30 hampers of vegetables, 220 quarts of ice cream, 1,000 quarts of milk and 11,500 eggs.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Sheriff's Sale.

Under Order of Sale on Foreclosure of Mortgage.

Bank of Sonoma County, (a Corporation,) Plaintiff, vs.
Georgiana L. Schell, May B. Curtis, Mary E. Pleasant and M. Marti, Defendants.

By virtue of an Order of Sale on Foreclosure of Mortgage, issued out of the Superior Court of the County of Sonoma, State of California, on the 5th day of February, A. D., 1897, on a judgment and decree of said Superior Court, rendered on the 7th day of December, 1896, in favor of Bank of Sonoma County (a corporation), plaintiff, and against Georgiana L. Schell, defendant, for the sum of Six Thousand Three Hundred Three and 80-100 ($6303.80) dollars, Gold Coin, with interest thereon at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum from the date of December 7th, 1896, and for the further sum of $250.00 attorney's fees and for costs of suit, amounting to the sum of $14.35, and decreeing that the premises described in plaintiff's complaint be sold and the proceeds applied to the expense of said sale, the costs of said action, and the debt due plaintiff from defendant, Georgiana L. Schell, the whole amount aggregating $6,568.15 Gold Coin, and the same to be at interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum until paid.

Also, in favor of May B. Curtis, defendant and cross-complainant and against Georgiana L. Schell, defendant, for the sum of Five Thousand and Six Hundred Sixty-Four and 40-100 ($5664.40) dollars, Gold Coin, with interest thereon at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum from the date of December 7th, 1896, and for the further sum of $250 attorney's fees and for costs of suit, amounting to the sum of $10.00, and decreeing that the premises described in defendant May B. Curtis' cross-complaint be sold and the proceeds applied to the expense of said sale, the costs of said action, and the debt due defendant May B. Curtis, cross-complainant, from defendant, Georgiana L. Schell, the whole amount aggregating $5,924.40, Gold Coin, and the same to be at interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum until paid.

Now, therefore, in pursuance of said judgment and decree and order of sale issued, and to me directed, I will offer for sale on the day hereinafter stated the property authorized to be sold under and by virtue of said decree:

FIRST TRACT—All the right, title and interest and estate of the said Georgiana L. Schell, as an heir at law, and devisee and legatee, or otherwise under and by virtue of the last Will and Testament of Theodore L. Schell, deceased, or otherwise, in and to the following described tract of land situate, lying and being in the County of Sonoma, State of California, and particularly described as being a portion of the Huichica Rancho, and designated upon the map of the said Rancho as made by one Bradley and shown on said Bradley's survey thereof, as Lots numbered Thirty-seven (37) and Thirty-eight (38) and all roads and streets surrounding said lots, containing about 328 acres.

That the proceeds from the said sale of the said property so ordered to be sold first be applied first to the satisfaction of the said judgment in favor of the said plaintiff, Bank of Sonoma County, (a corporation), and being for the sum of $6,568.15, Gold Coin, the amount as above stated, and after satisfying said amount of $6,568.15, with interest, and costs, if there be any surplus remaining, I am to pay such surplus to the said defendant, Georgiana L. Schell; and, second, I am to sell all the right, title, interest and estate of the said Georgiana L. Schell, as an heir at law, and as devisee and legatee, or otherwise, under and by virtue of the last Will and Testament of Theodore L. Schell, deceased; or, otherwise, in and to the following described lands situate, lying and being in the County of Sonoma, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to-wit:

SECOND TRACT—Being a portion of the Huichica Rancho and described as commencing at post L, on the southern line of the patent survey of the Huichica Rancho, bearing N. 48° 22' E., distant 103.15 chains from the post L on the bank of Sonoma Creek; and from said place of beginning running S. 48° 22' W. on said patent line 96 chains to land of Stofen; thence N. 28° W. 13.50 chains to a stake on the Northwest bank of slough; thence northerly on the westerly bank of the slough about 35 chains to a post marked with three notches; thence along a fence S. 88° 30' W. 9.15 chains; thence N. 4° W. 28.75 chains; thence S. 84° W. 2.96 chains to land of Goodman; thence on his line N. 7° 30' W. 19.60 chains to a stake; thence S. 85° W. 17.42 chains to a stake on the east line of the road; thence along the road N. 6° 30' W. 17.46 chains to a stake at the southwest corner of the land of Akers; thence on his line N. 78° 30' E. 3.63 chains to the patent line of said Rancho; thence N. 37° E. on said patent line 35 chains to lands of late Pauli; thence east on said land 90 chains to an iron pin from which the spire of the Catholic Church bears N. 37° 30' W.; thence N. 20.06 chains to a stake; thence E. 2.56 chains; thence N. 5.36 chains to an iron pin on land of Hyde; thence on his line N. 89° 45' E. 41.07 chains to an iron pin; thence on land of Switzer S. 30' W. 42.46 chains; thence on land of Ringstrom S. 1° E. 41.77 chains to a stake; thence W. 41.05 chains to a stake; thence S. 17.45 chains to the patent line; thence on said line N. 55° W. 4 chains to place of beginning. Saving and excepting therefrom Lots 37 and 38, and all streets or roads surrounding said lots according to the Huichica Rancho as laid down on Bradley's map thereof.

That the proceeds from the sale of the said tract of land hereinbefore and immediately above described and ordered sold secondly be applied as follows: To the payment of any deficiency remaining after applying the proceeds from the sale of the said first tract of 328 acres, more or less, upon said several sums due plaintiff, Bank of Sonoma County, and the balance of proceeds from the sale of the tract to be sold secondly, to the satisfaction of the said judgment in favor of defendant May B. Curtis and cross-complainant, and being for the sum of $5,924.40, Gold Coin, with interest and all costs, and if there still remains any surplus, then and in that case such surplus I am to pay to the said defendant Georgiana L. Schell.

Together with all and singular the tenements, heriditaments and appurtances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining. In accordance with said order and command, notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 8th Day of March, 1897,

At 1.30 o'clock P. M. of that day, in the City of Santa Rosa, County of Sonoma, in front of the Court House (Fourth-street entrance), I will offer for sale at Public Auction and sell to the highest and best bidder for cash, Gold Coin, the above-described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to raise sufficient money to satisfy said judgments with interest and costs.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

DEATH OF M. MARTI.

Passes Peacefully Away Last Saturday Night--The Funeral.

Melchoir Marti, a pioneer resident and one of the most successful dairymen of Sonoma Valley, died at Dr. Lane's Hospital, San Francisco, at 11 o'clock on Saturday night last, after an illness of several months. His death, which was caused by cancer of the stomach, was not unexpected, as the surgeons of the hospital gave up all hopes of saving their patient's life several weeks ago. The cancer was caused by the kick of a horse received a number of years ago.

M. Marti was born in Switzerland on March 31st, 1844. In 1865 at the age of 21 years he married Miss Elizabeth Jenny, and five years later the young couple emigrated to the United States and shortly after took up their residence in Sonoma. When Mr. Marti come here he was a poor man and, by hard work on the part of himself and wife, when he died he left the latter in very comfortable circumstances.

Mr. Marti, like all successful business men, had his enemies and he likewise had staunch friends. He was a man who always stood up for his rights and the rights of his friends, and this led him into a number of law suits during his life time in which he usually came out successful. Mr. Marti leaves a widow, a sister of Mrs. V. Riedi of Petaluma, but no children, his two sons having died years ago. He left a number of nephews also.

The remains were shipped to Sonoma in a handsome casket on Sunday night. Immediately upon their arrival they were taken in charge by the members of the Sonoma Lodge of Odd Fellows, of which deceased was an old member in good standing.

The funeral took place on Tuesday at 11 o'clock from Odd Fellows Hall, the remains being escorted to Mountain Cemetery by the brothers of the order, where the service of the Odd Fellows was read by Past Grand J. M. Cheney. The floral offerings from relatives and friends were both handsome and profuse.

Agua Caliente Springs.

The Agua Caliente Springs will be opened by Mrs. M. Nordin early in the spring. This resort is one of the best appointed in Northern California. These springs have already become noted for their curative properties and last season scores of afflicted people were permanently cured by bathing in and partaking of their health-giving waters. The bathing establishment attached to the resort consists of a large swimming tank, bath houses with porcelain bathing tubs, dressing rooms, promenade halls, etc. We bespeak for Mrs. Nordin, who has spent nearly $40,000 on the property, a most successful season.

Town Improvements.

Robt. Wilson has commenced the construction of his new cottage on Second-steeet East. John. M Burke is the contractor.

Joe. B. Small and Henry Lutgens are engaged in curbing Second-street East between Napa and Spain streets. The work is being done by the city.

Geo. Breitenbach's new harness shop, adjoining the Sonoma Valley Bank building, is completed and he will move into his new quarters to-day.

Henry Hartin, our enterprising City Trustee, will commence the erection of his new residence early in the spring. It will occupy a site on the northwest corner of Napa and Second-street East, and will be an ornament to that part of town.

Mrs. Annie Poppe is contemplating the erection of a fine residence on the northeast corner of Second-street East and Napa street.

V. Bulotti, one of our most enterprising citizens, it is said will erect a fine fire-proof building on his lot on Napa street, now occupied by J. Ruffner and Geo. Breitenbach.

Attention Farmers.

The attention of our farmers and others is called to the advertisement of Chas. N. Cheney, general blacksmith and horseshoer. Mr. Cheney, who is the successor of the late Chas. McHarvey, is thoroughly identified with the interests of both town and valley and being a reliable, first-class workman is deserving of success. His shop, which is supplied with all modern appliances, in located on the west side [illegible]

SONOMA'S WILD MAN.

Has a Long, Black Beard and Runs Like a Deer.

Sonoma has a wild man. His rendezvous is in the hills back of the Wickersham residence. He is described as being between 45 and 50 years of age, six feet tall, and his face is covered with a long, black, matted beard.

The Wickersham ranch comprises over one thousand acres. On the place are deep, dark and lonesome canyons and high mountains covered with a heavy growth of underbrush, where coyotes, foxes, deer, wildcats and other "varmints" are frequently seen by hunters who occasionally wander that way in quest of small game. The ranch is better known as the Col. Rogers place.

The wild man, who is evidently demented, took up his abode on the ranch several months ago and has been seen a score of times. Upon being discovered he at once takes to flight and, running like a deer, disappears in the thick underbrush. He sleeps under the trees and all through the winter he has been exposed to the elements, his only covering being a thin suit of ragged clothes and an old rubber overcoat. How he obtains food enough to sustain life is a mystery.

An effort will be made by the officers to effect his capture, which will be no easy matter, as he never sleeps in the same place twice but is constantly shifting from one part of the ranch to another. The last time he was seen was on Wednesday. If his capture is effected he will be charged with insanity.

THE ELECTRIC RAILWAY.

Route Has Been Surveyed and Arrangements Made for Borrowing Money to Build the Road.

Messrs. John F. Bixbee and N. H. Griswold, directors of the Santa Rosa and Sonoma County Electric Railway, says the Democrat, will be in Santa Rosa for some days. They are looking after the subscriptions for 650 500 mile commutation tickets which were promised here as an inducement and encouragement to the construction of the road and in aid of it. These tickets, it will be remembered, are to be good for use on the road from the time its train service goes into operation until the mileage is exhausted, are transferable, and are to be paid for in monthly payments only after the road is open. The subscription list is not full, and Messrs. Bixbee and Griswold are here to look after the filling of it. They are at the Grand Hotel, where they will be glad to meet the people of Santa Rosa and vicinity and explain to them the plans and prospects of the road directory. The route has been surveyed, the franchise is secured, and arrangements have been made for placing bonds for the working capital needed. This sale of tickets here, as assurance of business from the start, was a feature in the negotiations with the purchasers of the bonds.

Local Brevities.

The City Trustees will meet next Wednesday in regular semi-monthly session.

Garrat Hyatt was in town last Tuesday shaking hands with his many friends. Garrat is now employed by Sherman Bros. on their ranch between this place and Petaluma and has charge of their thoroughbred horses.

Fred. T. Bioletti, formerly of this valley, and Miss Eugenie Carlton of Berkeley were united in marriage last Saturday by the Rev. George E. Swan. The wedding took place at the Church of St. Mark's at Berkeley, which was handsomely decorated for the occasion. Mr. Bioletti is a step-son of the late Capt. Drummond and is now a member of the Agricultural College Faculty at the University. Owing to the fact that both families are in mourning the ceremony was quiet and simple. Mr. and Mrs. Bioletti will spend their honeymoon in Southern California.

Miss Mabel McDonald of Santa Rosa is visiting Mrs. Haven at her country residence near Agua Caliente.

Mrs. Barclay Henley introduced her daughter, Miss Gurnette Henley, into society last Saturday afternoon. A matinee tea was given in honor of the young lady at her home on Green street, San Francisco.

C. Schluss of the metropolis was a guest at the Clewe residence the first few days of the past week.

Otto Van Geldren, accompanied by his family, visited Sonoma relatives last Sunday and Monday.

Robt. Hill of Eldridge was in town Monday.

Henry Weyl, Geo. Engler and Wm. E. Thomas were Sonoma's visitors to the metropolis last Thursday.

Uncle John Small is visiting his son, Frank Small of San Francisco.

L. Modini and A. Pinelli made a business trip to San Francisco last Thursday.

The Episcopal services at the M. E. Church on Thursday afternoon was well attended. Many workers of the Mission were present and decided to hold meetings in Sonoma every two weeks. The rites of Baptism and Confirmation were conferred on Miss Ora Lawrence by the Right Rev. Anson Graves. Mrs. L. Walliser acted as organist for the occasion and Mrs. J. P. Weems sang a solo.

Mrs. McGimsey, who was taken seriously ill last Monday evening, is now out of danger.

Harry Chamberlain is very ill at his parents home in El Verano.

Attorney Robt. Poppe visited the County Seat Wednesday.

Jas. B. Small visited relatives in Kenwood and Glen Ellen last Saturday and Sunday.

It is not generally known that when a person falls into the water a common felt hat may be made use of as a life preserver, and by placing the hat upon the water, rim down, with the arm around it, pressing it slightly to the breast, it will bear a man up for hours.

The members of the High School Social Club gave an entertainment and hop last Monday evening at Union Hall, which was decorated in flags, bunting and palms for the occasion. A prominent feature of the decorations was a large picture of George Washington which rested on an easel, over the top of which was draped the national colors. First on the programme was a one act farce, "The Obstinate Family," with the following cast of characters: Henry Harford, J. Henderson; Mr. Harwood, Will Chase; James, the butler, Malcolm Elliott; Jessie Harford, Henry's wife, Miss B. Carpenter; Mrs. Harwood, Miss G. Wright; Lucy, a maid, Miss S. Cady. The above farce was laughable and received much applause. This was followed by a comedy in one act, "I Am My Brother," translated from the German and was cast as follows: Albert, R. M. Sims; Sirillo, D. A. Gordenker; Hiemfeld, Dr. D. G. Atwood; Carrie, Albert's wife, Miss C. Granice; Sophie, Carrie's neice, Miss E. Appleton. During the evening the orchestra rendered some choice music. Dancing was indulged in until 2 A. M. All who participated enjoyed the affair very much.

Mrs. Phœbe Hearst is now occupying her residence in Washington, D. C.

Oscar Campbell spent Washington's Birthday with his father, B. F. Campbell.

Supervisor Putnam was in town Thursday looking after the roads and bridges in this vicinity. So far he has made several needed improvements between this place and Schellville.

W. F. Searcy, formerly a resident of this place, died in Yountville, Napa county, on the 22nd inst. The deceased was a member of Temple Lodge, No. 14, F. & A. M., of this place. He leaves a widow and a number of grown children.

It is worth remembering, especially when staying at hotels, that if the bed clothing is not sufficiently warm, two or three newspapers spread between the blankets will insure a comfortable night.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, FEB, 27, 1897.

She Deserves a Monument.

A little group of advanced women, girls with strong ideas of the rights of women, believers in their free competition with men and repudiators of the idea that women should be treated with more deference than men, were talking when one of them began:

"Oh, girls, what do you suppose? I bought two men a drink."

"You did?" exclaimed the chorus in admiration.

"I did."

"Not in a saloon, I hope?" anxiously inquired one who was not as advanced as the rest.

"No; of course not. It was in a drug store."

"Oh, do tell us all about it!'

"You see, I was walking along the street with two men, when one of them suggested that we go in a drug store and get a drink. I made up my mind that I would not go in a drug store and let any man buy me soda water. I determined that I should insist upon my rights as a woman and buy the drinks. So I said I would go if they would let me pay for it."

"You brave girl!"

"They treated it as a joke at first. The very idea! But I told them my principles, and finally they agreed, although the mean things laughed. Then we went in. You don't know how afraid I was that they would pay for the drinks anyhow. But I was too quick. When the clerk laid down the check, I just grabbed it, and I wouldn't give it up, and when we went out I reached the cashier first and laid down just the right amount. The cashier seemed surprised. I don't see why. But I actually bought soda water for two men. What do you think of that?"

"You were a hero!" declared the girl who was the first to recover her breath. "Some day your sex will erect a monument in your honor."—Chicago Times-Herald.

His Awful Break.

The fair girl from Boston gazed upon Harold Bentley's face, and a new feeling took possession of her. He was one of Cleveland's most aristocratic young men and as handsome as a Greek god.

After they had been introduced they strolled away from the crowd, and he told her about his sisters and his mother, who were in Europe, and Beatrice Montgomery suddenly realized that the flame of love was beginning to flicker in her breast.

She talked vivaciously of her days at Wellesley and of her explorations in the rich mines of Sanskrit and of her investigations of the Mahatmas and the occult flapdoodles of the far east.

Then he told her about his horses and his rubber tired traps, and they gazed into each other's eyes and sighed a lot of long drawn sighs and were beginning to feel that they had passed through the pearly gates and were strolling through streets that were paved with gold.

At last Beatrice Montgomery said:

"You have told me about your mother and your sisters being in Europe, but you have said nothing about your father. Is he with them?"

"No," the handsome young man replied after a painful pause; "he is not with them. My mother is a widow woman."

When the doctors had finally succeeded in bringing the fair Boston girl out of her swoon, she waved her hands at Harold Bentley and wildly cried:

"Take that man away!"—Cleveland Leader.

Digestible Women.

An extraordinary discussion on the subject of cannabalism took place at the recent meeting of the Ethnographical society in Paris. A curious tribute was paid to the superior qualities of woman, but one which she will hardly appreciate.

A member of the society read a paper in which he declared that among savage nations those who were addicted to cannibalism were the most healthy and vigorous. He sought to prove this by descriptions of several races.

This argument was directed partly against vegetarianism, for savages who abstain from eating one another usually have a meager supply of animal food.

The scientist further made the shocking statement that the flesh of women was much more nutritious and digestible than that of men. Many savage tribes recognized this fact and ate only women when the supply was sufficient. In some races, however, the flesh of men, though less palatable than that of women, was preferred because the virtues of the deceased were supposed to pass into the eater.—San Francisco Examiner.

They Were Ready.

One of the district school trustees was a crank on the subject of fire, and when he called around with the examining board he always confined his remarks to a question addressed to the pupils as to what they would do in case the building should catch fire.

The teacher was acquainted with his hobby, so she prompted her scholars as to the answer they should give when he arose to propound his accustomed inquiry.

When the board called, however, this particular trustee, perhaps from a desire to emulate his associates in their addresses, rose and said:

"You boys and girls have paid such nice attention to Mr. Jones' remarks, I wonder what you would do if I were to make you a little speech?"

Quick as thought 100 voices piped in unison:

"Form a line and march down stairs."—Detroit Free Press.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

TWO LITTLE MAIDS.

These Eskimo Tots Have Been Adopted by an American Gentleman.

Two little Eskimo tots from faroff Alaska have been entertained at Gloucester, Mass., the past few weeks. They are twins, 6 years old, and traveled overland with their adopted father, Mr. Miner W. Bruce, who came from Seattle in order to purchase a fishing schooner destined for the north Pacific fisheries. Mr. Bruce, who was born in Boston, is a well known scientific and literary man, whose work on Alaska is a standard publication of its kind.

In 1892 he established the government reindeer station at Port Clarence, Alaska, at which place reindeer are brought across from Siberia by the government agents for the purpose of propagation for a food supply.

The parents of the little ones were too poor to keep them, and Mr. Bruce decided he would bring them up himself. They are devotedly attached to him. He says they never quarrel among themselves over the possession of toys or other matters, as some children, nor do they give any trouble to the hotel people, but, on the contrary, become prime favorites with all with whom they come in contact. Neither does the transition in their mode of life nor the change of climate affect their health or disposition. They thrive in any place.—Boston Herald.

A Snowball.

Teddy never meant to do it, but when Tom threw a snowball what could he do but squeeze up another and toss it back? And how could he know that naughty ball would hop right over Tom's head and go smash right into the window of Miss Priscilla Prim's millinery shop? But there was the broken pane and the glass scattered all over the ladies' bonnets.

Tom dodged around one corner and Teddy around the other. When Miss Priscilla looked out, the street was as empty and still as if there was not one little boy in town.

"I got off pretty well," thought Teddy. "If she caught me, she'd make me pay my whole 87 cents."

Nobody but Teddy knew how many errands he had run and how many paths he had swept and how much candy and popcorn and butter scotch he had not eaten to get together that 87 cents. As soon as he could earn just 13 cents more they were all to go for the little steam engine in the toyshop window.

Just five minutes later Teddy stepped into Miss Priscilla's shop with his little red savings bank in his hand. He emptied it on the counter, and out came rolling such a swarm of dimes and nickels and pennies! Miss Priscilla was so surprised that her eyebrows went right up to her little gray curls.

"Say, I fired that snowball," said Teddy bravely. "So I ought to pay for it, 'course, you know."

"Well, you are an honest boy!" said Miss Priscilla. "But you are dreadful careless."

Teddy went past the toyshop window on his way home, and he could not help just looking at the little engine. But he was not sorry for being honest, not a bit.—Youth's Companion.

Boys and Girls' Bird Day.

How would you like to spend one day every year studying the birds? The boys and girls of Oil City, Pa., and of Fort Madison, Ia., have a regular bird day, which comes every year, in the spring, like Arbor day. They have songs, recitations and readings about birds, and in the afternoon they take a trip to the woods to hear the songs of the birds. At the Fort Madison school the pupils bring their pet birds, and the building rings all day with their songs. Besides that, the pupils watch the birds all the year through, reporting when the birds come in the spring and studying those that remain during the winter. — Chicago Record.

Brave Girls of Canton.

The most effective cigarette crusade of the day is being carried on in Canton, O., where a number of schoolgirls recently formed a league and went about securing pledges from their boy friends not to smoke cigarettes.—Philadelphia Press.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labelling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children will be kept well, and that you will have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

Poisoning From Honey.

The old saying that every sweet has its bitter might be accentuated by the statement that honey sometimes contains the most active and dangerous poison. A case in point is related in a medical review as follows: A man and his wife ate honey. They took but a little, as they observed a burning sensation of the mouth and throat as soon as the honey was swallowed. Within a few minutes both were taken ill. There were nausea, severe pain and vomiting, then a loss of consciousness, coldness of the extremities, feeble action of the heart and collapse. No pulse could be detected. The wife remained insensible for several hours, but the husband was not entirely restored until the following day. Even then strength returned very slowly, and there was every indication of extreme exhaustion. A portion of the honey was treated chemically, and an extract was given to two cats; to one a small dose and to the other a large dose was administered.

The small one produced partial exhaustion, relaxation of the voluntary muscles and general depression. The large one took effect almost immediately, producing relaxation, vomiting, purging, prostration and almost complete loss of control over the voluntary muscles. The cat did not regain its normal condition for 24 hours.

A fairly thorough examination of the honey was made in order, if possible, to discover the nature of the poisonous element. No positive conclusion was arrived at, but the chemists were reasonably satisfied that the rhododendron and a few other plants of that class contained the objectionable substance. It is also stated that plants belonging to the heath family have been by botanists looked upon with apprehension, for the reason that they have been suspected of harboring the toxic qualities which accounted for the cases of honey poisoning.—New York Ledger.

With Burgoyne at Saratoga.

In 1791 an officer who had served with Burgoyne wrote a volume, which he called "Travels Through the Interior Parts of America, In a Series of Letters." The writer was Thomas Anburey, captain of the Twenty-ninth regiment, who was with Burgoyne at his surrender. In Macmillan's Magazine there is an excellent notice of Captain Anburey's work, and the condition of the English soldiers is thus explained:

Burgoyne's army was steadily diminishing, while the cords round it were surely tightening. All day and night from the surrounding woods whistled the bullets of the American riflemen. The soldiers were so inured to fire, we are told, that they ate and slept under it with scarcely any concern, while, to add terrors to the night, came the dreary howl of wolves, attracted by hundreds to such an unwonted banquet. The American sharpshooters were naturally in their element upon the steep sides of the wooded ravines that formed such a feature in every battle and skirmish. The longed for bayonet hung in idleness from the belts of the British infantry—there was no room or place for it. The soldiers had nothing but discipline and their native valor to make up for their immense inferiority in the use of the rifle to most of their foes, nor do we require Anburey's testimony to realize what a hopeless country was this in which Burgoyne's army now found themselves for the conduct of warfare upon European systems. For ourselves, we have always marveled at the fashion in which the British soldier of that day, half starved and ridiculously clothed, fought his way through superior numbers of his own race as well armed as he, better marksmen and familiar with the wild woods which to him must have been strange and terrible.

The "Ears" of Insects.

The naturalists have not as yet been able to answer the burning question, Can bees hear? But their researches along that line have resulted in many queer discoveries. Simply because a bee has no ears on the sides of his head it is no sign whatever that he is wholly without some sort of an auditory nerve. This last assertion is proved by the fact that grasshoppers, crickets, locusts and flies all have their ears situated in queer places—under the wings, on the middle of the body and even on the sides of their legs. The common house fly does his hearing by means of some little rows of corpuscles which are situated on the knobbed threads which occupy the place which are taken up by the hind wings of other species of insects. The garden slug or shell-less snail has his organs of hearing situated on each side of his neck, and the common grasshopper has them on each of his broad, flat thighs. In some of the smaller insects they are at the bases of the wings, and in others on the bottom of the feet.—St. Louis Republic.

Great Drunkards.

The question as to whether great men are ever drunkards must be answered in the affirmative, though argument is frequently made to the contrary. Cato was a hard drinker, while, in the language of one writer, old Ben Jonson was constantly "pickled." The poet Savage used to go on the hardest kinds of "tears," and Rogers observed, after seeing his own statue, "It is the first time I have seen him stand straight for many years." Byron says of Porson, the great classical scholar, "I can never recollect him except as drunk or brutal, and generally both." Keats was on a spree once that lasted six months. Horace, Plato, Aristophanes, Euripides, Alcæus, Socrates and Tasso of the old timers and Goethe, Schiller, Addison, Pitt, Fox, Blackstone, Fielding, Sterne and Steele were all hard drinkers at intervals.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

His Mental Burdens.

"Where do we go tonight, Henry?"

"I don't know, Agnes. I've had something awful on my mind all day, but I can't remember whether it is a progressive euchre party or the Browning class."—Chicago Record.
